Opening of the new spring millinery & suits Today, tomorrow and Wednesday. Immense crowds at both stores.

The curtain rose this morning on the largest, brightest and most fashionable stock of millinery and suits in the District and every minute since both stores have been "busy as bees." Thus and suits in the District and every minute since both stores have been "busy as bees." Thus far it has been a wonderfully successful event. But thousands were waiting for it with eager

In millinery, all that tact and taste have wrought—all that genius and skill have conjured—is here—the latest exploits of milliners on both sides of the Atlantic. Paris originals from Virot, Ponyanne, Esther Meyer, Laura Marot, Caroline Rebeaux, Loys, Heitz-Boyer, Camille Roger, Josse, Julia, Michniewicz, Tuvee and others. Mourning bonnets in a profusion of sorts. London walking hats for wear with tailor-made costumes in dozens of styles. Hundreds of trimmed creations from our own milliners, copies of the foreign and originals by

The newly-enlarged and transformed millinery parlors, filled to overflowing, and the whole intensified with abundant electric lights, is a sight worthy to be seen, and thousands will see it as the result of this announcement.

There are many reasons why you should buy your spring millinery here. The display is the largest in town—you'll find here more trimmed and untrimmed hats than are shown by any three stores in the city combined. You'll find the values greatest here. Millinery is not a small department here or an experiment. We enjoy the largest millinery trade of Washington, and we've gotten it because we de-

EMMET GUARDS AT A SMOKER. Function Given in Honor of St. Patrick's Day.

Function Given in Honor of St. Patrick's Day.

The annual celebration of St. Patrick's day by the Emmet Guards was held Saturday evening in the form of a smoker at Typographical Temple, which was prettily decorated in colors of the emerald isle.

Many members of the guard, with their comrades and friends, assembled in honor of the day, and entertaining stories were told. Capt. O'Neill, the newly elected commander, spoke briefly on the company's present and past records and of its future, both as a military and social organization. Lieuts. Harlow and MeNally also spoke of the company, and Comrade Howell, a veteran of both the civil and Spanish-American wars, told of his experiences in both con-John Ryan. Fred Blake, Sergeant Gallagher and Bert Nolan also made a few remarks, the latter's subject being based upon the raising of a fund to purchase a head-stone to place at the grave of the late Lieut. Hardon in Arilington, where but a subject to the Chesapeake and Ohio canal. spot would prove a boon to the thousands of wheelmen who pedal on the Conduit road, and particularly so to the lady riders who do not feel equal to the wheel as far as the bridge. It also has the advantage of being reached by a single fare on the electric railway from all parts of the city, and should be to the city a river park as beautiful and attractive as is the Zoological Park. The distance between the two reservoirs is about two miles, with a level roadway, and runs through the Palisades residential section.

It is probably only a question of time when the recommendations of the engineers will be substantiated by an appropriation from Congress. This would then be practically a continuation of Pennsylvania evenue, which now possesses a national reputation for width and urban beauty as a thoroughtere.

With the present stimulus to suburban improvement, by reason of extension and betterment in railway facilities and street extensions, it would seem but reasonable to expect government development of its properties, and an agitation to that end would be quite in line with public requirements. Poor, a scene grown familiar to many friends of the institution and full of amazing interest to those present for the first time was in progress. The several hundred inmates enjoyed their St. Joseph's day dinner under most pleasing auspices, with many of the leading lights in the diplomatic and resident world as their humble helpers and attendants. The French ambassador, Mr. Cambon, Captain and Mrs. Vignal, Mr. Jules Boeufve, chan-cellor of the embassy, were all present, the gentlemen being in charge of the waiters and waitresses assigned to each refectory. The Misses Riggs, Mrs. James F. Barbour, the Misses Patten and dozens of other ladies were assiduous in the good work. Pathetic as such a contrast must always be of those blessed with this world's goods and those who owe their daily sustenance to the Little Sisters and the good friends of the institution, it had also its humorous side. After dinner there was singing and dancing, and a fine time generally. At the last both inmates and their guests met together in the chapel for benediction. work. Pathetic as such a contrast must

Through the pearly gates of beaven
Passed this one we loved so dear:
God thought best to take him from us,
Though He left our home so drear.
BY HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN.

KEILER. In loving remembrance of my darling father, CHAS. KELLER, who died six years ago today, March 19, 1894.

Ah, vacant is the fireside chair,
The smile that won is no longer there;
From door and hall, from porch and lawn,
The echo of that voice is gone,
And we who linger only know
How much was lost six years ago. BY HIS LOVING DAUGHTER. Mrs. R. CARSON.
